

THREADLINE MASTER BUSINESS BRIEF V3 - COURSE AUTHORITY + PRODUCTI- ZATION VALIDATION

DRAFT - BRANDING PENDING | 4 September 2026

This addendum supersedes V2 only where stated. All agreed Threadline commercial/product decisions remain intact.

What Threadline is

Threadline is a premium DFY managed content-growth service for a single active wedge of expert-led B2B businesses at launch. The category may broaden later; the first market does not.

Outcome hierarchy

1. Commercial: create more authority and qualified demand/pipeline from the founder's expertise.
2. Creative: turn that expertise into content people actually want to watch.
3. Operational: remove the need for the founder to run the content machine themselves.

Threadline is in the marketing lane. Workflow improvements are mechanism/secondary value, not the headline result.

Productized service model

Internally, Threadline aims for roughly 80% standard / 20% configured.

Standard 80%

Qualification -> onboarding/Brand Brain -> baseline -> Recording Readiness -> market/customer research -> constraint hypothesis -> strategy/tests -> ideas/scripts/visual mechanism -> recording queue -> footage QA -> editing -> internal QA -> consolidated approval -> packaging -> distribution -> performance/commercial signal capture -> learning -> reporting -> next cycle.

Configured 20%

Client's market, offer, voice, proof, stories, worldview, examples, claims, CTA, account access, visual brand, current constraint and approved strategic tests.

The buyer experiences relevant customisation. Threadline does not rebuild the operating model from scratch.

One active market + one expensive problem

“Expert-led B2B” is the umbrella. SOP 00 selects one first wedge. Threadline does not scale prospecting until immersion and direct validation support a recurring expensive problem in that wedge.

Validation gate

The course’s niche immersion and Problem/Solution Validation principles are authoritative. For V14, use five direct research conversations as the first sample. The mentor’s 4-of-5 same-core-pain threshold is a useful heuristic, not a forced mathematical rule.

Locked founding commercial hypothesis

£2,500 implementation + £2,500/month, 3-month initial engagement, ONE offer.

Do not add three tiers at launch. Do not discount because fulfilment becomes faster. Do not price by hours. Add-ons/tiers/ascension are created only after repeated client demand makes the next outcome predictable.

Sales posture

Threadline should increasingly arrive knowing because it serves one market and has validated recurring problems. The call verifies and diagnoses severity; it does not ask the buyer to design the service.

Good posture: “In businesses like yours we repeatedly see X/Y/Z. I want to understand which, if any, is constraining you most and whether the Threadline system fits.”

Bad posture: “Tell us everything you want and we’ll build a custom content package.”

Client #1

Client #1 is both a real customer and the productized-service prototype. Overdeliver on the promised problem/outcome, not on random scope. Record every dependency, wait state, QA step and minute. After each cycle improve the reusable 80%.

Founder job

At launch the founder’s job is deliberately narrow: 1. choose/validate market and problem; 2. acquisition + research conversations; 3. diagnose, sell and close; 4. strategic/creative judgement; 5. onboard client #1 and high-level QA;

6. record Threadline's own founder content; 7. review evidence and decide what changes.

Everything else is templated, software-assisted, editor-owned, deleted, automated safely or delegated after it is proven.

Current state machine

WEDGE -> IMMERSION -> VALIDATION -> FREEZE PROBLEM/OFFER MESSAGE -> LAUNCH GATE -> FUNNEL MATH -> ACQUISITION -> DIAGNOSE/PRESCRIBE -> CLOSE -> DAY-7 INSTALL -> WEEKLY DELIVERY -> PROOF/LEARNING -> IMPROVE 80% -> SOP/DELEGATE -> SCALE.

THREADLINE MASTER BUSINESS BRIEF V2 - COURSE AUTHORITY

DRAFT - BRANDING PENDING | 4 September 2026

This addendum controls operating method where the inherited V1 brief conflicts.

Business - unchanged

Threadline is a premium DFY content-growth service for expert-led B2B businesses. Immediate creative promise: turn existing expertise into content people actually want to watch. Deeper outcome: compound that content into authority and qualified demand without making the founder run the content machine.

Locked commercial hypothesis - unchanged

£2,500 implementation + £2,500/month, 3-month initial engagement, one offer.

Course-authority operating sequence

IMMERSION -> OFFER/MESSAGE HYPOTHESIS -> REVERSE-ENGINEER ACQUISITION -> OUTBOUND/INBOUND SYSTEM -> DIAGNOSE/SELL -> ONBOARD FAST -> DAY-7 WIN -> MINIMUM VIABLE DELIVERY -> REPORT/LEARN -> PROOF -> SOP -> DELEGATE -> SCALE.

Founder-only jobs at launch

1. Market/niche judgement.
2. Acquisition, diagnosis calls, follow-up and closing.
3. Creative/strategic judgement and Threadline founder recording.
4. Client onboarding/strategy/high-level QA.

Everything else should be software-assisted, editor-owned, templated, deleted or delegated only after being proven.

Key V13 correction

LinkedIn is not a doctrine. The first controlled acquisition hypothesis is qualified cold email, with LinkedIn used for sourcing/context/credibility/support and personalised Looms reserved for A-fit prospects. Activity volume comes from reverse-engineering the 90-day funnel, not from an arbitrary platform quota.

THREADLINE

MASTER BUSINESS BRIEF

The detailed elevator pitch, issue map, ICP, offer, operating flow and founder-only responsibility map. Designed to answer “what is Threadline and what do I do next?”

1. Threadline in one sentence

Threadline turns expert knowledge into high-quality content that people actually want to watch, then runs the system around it so that content compounds into authority and qualified demand - without making the founder run the content machine.

15-second elevator pitch

Threadline is a done-for-you content-growth service for expert-led B2B businesses. We learn the founder, market and offer; turn that expertise into strong ideas and scripts; manage production and distribution; then use performance and commercial signals to improve the next cycle. The founder mainly talks, records, approves key decisions and sells.

30-second elevator pitch

Most expert founders know they should build a personal brand, but either do not know what to say, do not have time to run a content team, or end up with generic content that does not translate into trust or demand. Threadline runs the machine around their expertise: research, positioning, ideas, scripts, recording readiness, editing, packaging, publishing, measurement and learning. We are not selling software access or generic editing. We are selling a managed content-growth engine.

2. Who it is for

Established B2B consultants, specialist agencies, expert-led service firms.	Pre-revenue founders with no proven offer.
Proven £5k+ offer / meaningful LTV.	Low-ticket economics where one client cannot justify the retainer.
Founder expertise/credibility materially influences buying.	Clients who refuse to record or contribute expertise.
Already believes in content or has visible content potential.	Follower/view-only goals with no business objective.
Has capacity to take on demand.	Needs paid ads, funnels, SDR or web-dev as the real primary problem.

Initial ICP hypothesis

Start with one active wedge at a time inside expert-led B2B - likely established consultants, specialist agencies or expert-led professional services in roughly the £500k-£5m revenue range. This is a hypothesis until conversations validate the first wedge.

3. What pain is being solved

"I do not know what to post."	Expertise is not being systematically extracted and mapped to buyer problems.	Brand Brain + market/customer evidence + idea system.
"My content is boring/generic."	Weak angles, hooks, point of view, packaging or over-reliance on generic AI.	Creative strategy + scripts + visual mechanisms + voice/claim QA.
"I do not have time."	Founder is doing research, ideation, project management, editor chasing and publishing.	Move non-scarce tasks off founder; batch recording; action-first client surface.
"We post but it does not lead anywhere."	Content is disconnected from offer, audience, sales objections and learning.	Commercial signals + qualified-demand lens + monthly/weekly learning loop.
"My agency just edits."	No compounding memory, market intelligence or strategic feedback loop.	Evidence -> signal -> strategy -> content -> response -> next learning.

4. What Threadline actually does

Understand	Brand Brain, ICP/offer capture, proof, voice, banned claims, baseline.	Expertise, business facts, source materials, strategic truth.
Research	Market/customer/competitor evidence, recurring pains, objections, language, gaps.	Approve/clarify sensitive claims and context.
Strategy	Pillars, messages, angles, content hypotheses, CTA path.	Approve key direction.
Create	Ideas, hooks, scripts/outlines, visual device, recording queue.	Record and bring authentic expertise/opinion.
Produce	Editor management, QA, packaging, revisions, status.	Approve defined batches within SLA.
Distribute	Scheduling/manual/native delegated publishing as agreed.	Provide/approve access method where needed.
Learn	Performance review, commercial signals, proof capture, next tests.	Share sales/customer feedback Threadline cannot observe.

5. Operations flow chart

6. The division of labour

Desired client perception: “I talk. I record. I approve. I sell. Threadline handles the machine.”

Expertise and strong opinions	Research and evidence preparation
Recording	Idea generation and script preparation
Key strategic approvals	Editor/project coordination
Sales conversations / closing	Packaging and publishing workflow
Important client/business changes	Performance/commercial-signal logging
Final truth on claims	Operational memory and next-cycle learning

Current launch reality

Before Threadline has a team and proof, the founder still has to do acquisition and sales. The “only record/approve/sell” state is the target operating model after processes are proven, SOPed and delegated - not an excuse to avoid launch-stage revenue work.

7. Founding offer

Working founding hypothesis: £2,500 implementation + £2,500/month, 3-month initial engagement (£10,000 initial contract value). One offer while learning.

- Base service: research, strategy, scripting, recording system, short-form production/packaging, agreed distribution workflow, analytics/commercial signals and optimization.
- Working short-form scope hypothesis: roughly 12-16 core assets/month; exact launch scope must be frozen before outbound.
- YouTube Shorts may fit normal channel execution; long-form YouTube remains PILOT/CUSTOM until workload is measured.
- Do not include paid ads, funnels, email marketing, appointment setting, web development, daily community management or unlimited design by default.
- Risk reversal should cover controllable implementation/output milestones, not guaranteed views, leads or revenue.

8. How the business makes money

Implementation fee	Pays for Brand Brain, diagnosis, setup, recording readiness and first strategic/production install.
Retainer	Pays for the recurring weekly content-growth loop.
Expansion	Only after proof: more volume, long-form, additional channels or higher strategic complexity.
Margin protection	Fixed scope, editor bench, revision rules, measured delivery time and founder-load ledger.
Proof loop	Every meaningful result is captured so acquisition becomes easier and pricing can rise.

9. Founder command centre - what you do

Rule: At any moment, identify the current stage and execute only the task that moves the stage gate. Optional building does not outrank revenue action.

PRE-LAUNCH	Finish Launch Gate: offer lock, commercial path, editor bench, booking/CRM/prospects, QA/deploy.	A prospect can book, buy, pay and be onboarded without improvising critical infrastructure.
ACQUIRE	Send qualified first touches + follow-ups; log replies; publish supporting content only after revenue actions.	Sales call booked; acquisition engine continues daily.
SELL	Run diagnosis call; understand economics/content constraint; show only relevant Threadline loop; ask for clear decision.	NOT_FIT / FOLLOW_UP / PROPOSAL / WON logged.
CLOSE	Contract + payment + kickoff + client workspace + required inputs.	Client is activated, not just verbally interested.
INSTALL	Run Brand Brain, baseline, research/diagnosis, recording readiness and first batch.	By Day 7: first cycle is actually in production.
DELIVER	Run weekly evidence -> strategy -> scripts -> record -> edit -> publish -> learn loop.	Weekly cycle complete; month-end moves to review.
SCALE	Measure load; SOP proven tasks; delegate only when evidence says founder is bottleneck.	Founder increasingly keeps only judgment, relationships, recording and sales.

10. Daily founder operating card

While pre-client / acquiring

- Open CRM first.
- Handle live replies and due follow-ups.
- Complete 15-20 qualified first touches; hard floor 10 on an acquisition workday.
- Prepare/run any booked diagnosis calls.
- Only after revenue actions: write/record/post own Threadline content.
- Update scoreboard and exact next actions before stopping.

When clients exist

- Protect acquisition floor unless delivery SLA is genuinely at risk or capacity has intentionally been capped.
- Use the client SOP for the current stage; do not manage by memory.
- Time every meaningful fulfilment task until capacity is understood.
- Create/revise SOPs only after a process has been proven repeatedly.
- Do not build an integration merely because manual work feels inelegant; wait for repeated evidence across clients.

11. What Threadline is not

- Not a SaaS product sold on access to a dashboard.
- Not merely a video-editing agency.
- Not a generic “post more” personal-brand coaching offer.
- Not a guaranteed-leads scheme.
- Not a full-stack marketing department at £2.5k/month.
- Not an excuse to endlessly build internal software before talking to buyers.

12. The key message stack

Situation	You have expertise worth listening to.
Creative promise	We turn it into content people actually want to watch.
Attainability	You do not need insane time, money, gear or a giant team.
Mechanism	Threadline extracts, researches, scripts, produces, distributes and learns around your expertise.
Business outcome	The content compounds into authority and qualified demand.
Founder experience	You talk, record, approve key decisions and sell; the machine runs around you.

North-star sentence: Build a personal brand people genuinely want to follow, without turning content into another full-time job - and make the resulting attention commercially useful.